Cas Salley joins RCB Bank in Inola

INOLA, Okla. – RCB Bank welcomes Cas Salley as a VP loan officer in Inola.

Salley has worked in banking for 18 years and specializes in agriculture lending. Salley owns a ranch in Inola, where he and his wife Brenda run a commercial cow operation and raise quarter horses.

“I understand the challenges of running a business and want to help business owners succeed,” Salley said. “I’m passionate about agriculture, and want to help business owners improve their cash flow, either with the products we offer at RCB Bank or through referrals to a connection I’ve made in the community and state.”

Salley was raised in Catoosa, and his family owned and operated the Tulsa Stockyards for 20 years. He is a graduate of Oklahoma State University and holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Agriculture.

Salley said his No. 1 piece of financial advice is to bank in a small town.

“You can get to know your banker on a personal level in a small-town bank,” Salley said.

He is a longtime board member of the Rogers County 4-H and FFA Premium Auction, a member of the Inola Education Enrichment Foundation and treasurer of the Tulsa State Fair Ringmasters, which provides scholarships to 4-H and FFA students across Oklahoma.

When not working at RCB Bank or on his ranch, Salley works livestock sales across the Midwest as a bid spotter and he competes at team roping events in the four-state area.
